KERRISDALE COMMUNITY CENTRE REPORT

1965 - 1966

Kerrisdale Community Centre serves approximately 10% of its by-law area, members coming from near-by and spreading throughout the district and the city as can be seen on the area map recorded for this programme year.

Use has been made of charts to illustrate how the Centre is used and by whom. Adequacies have been observed and suggestions made of possible improvement in programming.

Phoebe Hamilton, Director
Kerrisdale Community Centre

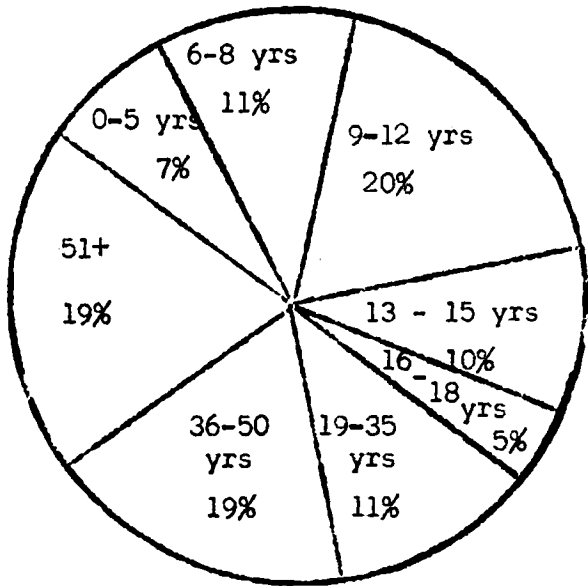

Trends at Kerrisdale Community Centre based on the following programme analysis, and "Metropolitan Vancouver, An Overview for Social Planners."

1. The apartment building has brought more adults, young, middle-aged and elder people into the community.
2. The young adults, in order to participate, are requiring more services for the pre-schooler.
3. The middle-aged adults are making more use of the centre, particularly in group activities and arts and crafts.
4. The older citizens are also turning out for limited activities.
5. Co-educational activities are becoming increasingly popular.
6. Classes are continuing with less drop-outs into a longer season.
7. More use is being made of all facilities at all times, and some programming takes place outside the building.

Planning for the future might include

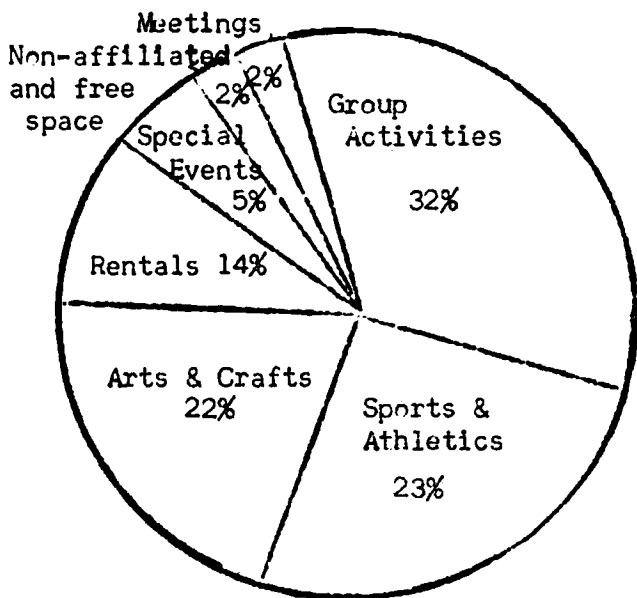

1. Concentrated programming in the following areas:
 - a) Youth (13 - 18 years)
 - b) Pre-schoolers (3-5 years)
 - c) Elder Citizens (51 years)
2. Training of young volunteer leaders and using part-time staff for major work in special areas.
3. Encouragement of handicapped groups and the neighbouring Indian residents to make use of the facilities.
4. Co-ordinating efforts with near-by agencies, organizations and schools.
5. Fostering out-of-the-building activities, as well as those within the building.
6. Study of the following charts will show where programme emphasis lies presently.
